Songs of Love and Love

Mid-life crisis? Start a band. What if you already have one? Start another one.

Mandaddy: Songs of Love and Love

Yon (Tripod) is joined by musicians Naomune Anzai (Toys of Noise) and SJ (Princess One Point Five)

Songs of Love and Love is about fading beauty. Rejection. Physical attraction. Self-delusion.

Self-loathing.

And love. The word love gets said a lot.

Co-Written and Directed by Fiona Scott-Norman

Venue: The Butterfly Club

ManDaddy: Songs of Love and Love is Yon from Tripod's first solo show. He reckons it's time to bust out and try something solo. Not that Tripod are breaking up. Yon just wants to talk about himself without the other two interrupting.

ManDaddy: Songs of Love and Love sees Yonny spinning pain and awkwardness into your enjoyment. Come and watch him get buffeted around by life. Maybe you've been buffeted a bit yourself?

This show is about love, but not so much the first flush of passion, or the break-up. It's more the in between times. Like the three hour car ride where you're having an unspoken fight about the volume of the radio. You turn it down, I turn it up. You turn it down. I turn it up. You turn it down. I turn it up. I turn it down. You turn it up to a medium level.

All the songs are new, and will be played on piano, guitar, with keyboard blips and beeps and a sixties drum machine. There will also be chatting.
