Take Heart Trudy a musical and medical trek into the human heart

TAKE HEART TRUDY presented by Sarah Nagorcka, Stephen Brooks and their musical posse, is a re-enactment of all things heart. No stone remains unturned as both characters endeavour to grasp what it means to 'have a heart' in an age of social conscience, self improvement and rational thought.

With a background in science and her head in a cloud, Nagorcka brings an unusual combination of fact and fragility to each of her musical works. Using a range of unusual mediums that include angiograms and inflatable boats, she presents what is common to us all in a far from common way. Having won numerous awards for her song-writing in the past, this new artistic venture blurs the lines between language and song, the spiritual and physical, pain and beauty.
