The Full Load

A curious and funny encounter in a Laundromat

Krispin K runs a Laundromat in Altona. He styles his customers along with their washing and matches people like socks, best of all, he loves to put on his customers clothes and imagine their lives.

A highly interactive show that takes place in a Laundromat in Altona. Promises to change your view of Laundromats forever. Written and performed by Nigel Sutton Directed by Roslyn Odes

The Full Load

A curious and funny encounter with a man a Laundromat and some dirty washing.

Krispin K runs a Laundromat in Altona . Krispin has no time for a boyfriend or a life outside The Full Load. Krispin loves his work, he rescues designer clothes from the bottom of laundry baskets, styles his customers along with their washing and matches people like socks, best of all, he loves to put on his customers clothes and imagine their lives.

The Full Load is a wild ride through the tumbled and often outrageous world of Krispin K and his special laundromat. Krispin asks his audience the big questions- What do our clothes reveal about us? And why oh why do we trust strangers with our dirty underwear?

Written and performed by Nigel Sutton a master storyteller and skilled improviser who likes to immerse his audiences in the experience of theatre using non traditional spaces.

Directed by Roslyn Odes writer and director of Fast Cars & Tractor Engines and Stories of Love & Hate.

This one hour performance is highly interactive and takes place in a Laundromat in Altona. The show promises to change your view of the humble Laundromat forever.
