The Waiting Place
...For People Just Waiting

Nine audience members. Nine performers. Countless moments. One room. 5 parts somewhere. 4 parts nowhere.
A place we all find ourselves.

...The Waiting Place is an intimate performance work investigating distinctions between the world outside and the world within. Combining animation with live performance in a series of short vignettes, The Waiting Place is at once somewhere and nowhere. A place we all find ourselves. It's where we confront life's paradoxes and the absurdities that variously define, embrace and confound us. Each of The Chaotic Order's performers is regarded as having an intellectual disability. It's something that informs the piece, but isn't the driving influence. For that, we look to insight, humanity and shared experience. The resulting work is darkly humorous, transcending social, ethical and cultural definitions. It's a rethinking of our perceived differences, and a call to what is common between us.

The Waiting Place will premiere as part of the 2011 Melbourne Fringe Festival at Footscray Community Arts Center. from 29th September – 8th October.
