Volume 3 @ The Toff in Town New works for solo violins

VOLUME - the dynamic solo violin show that sold out the BMW Edge in 2010 is back. Melbourne violinist Sarah Curro performs Australian works for acoustic, semi-acoustic and electric violin made by Paul Davies of Arts Music. Also featuring digital images, filmclips and costumes made for the show.

VOLUME 3 @ The Toff in Town is part of the Melbourne Fringe Festival, and will see Sarah showcasing some of Australia's finest music writing talent for the 4th year running. Pop artists writing classical style, classical composers breaking out the effects pedals. All the rules are broken in the VOLUME experience.

Throughout my life, I have met enough artists, composers, costume designers, photographers, instrument makers, and generally creative people to know that there is so much unique talent being overlooked. VOLUME finds this talent, distills it, and serves it to you in the one convenient solo-violin-powered show.

The VOLUME series is about encouraging emerging talented artists of many disciplines by commissioning them to create a work of Art for this show.

Commissioning great works of art should not be left only to wealthy benefactors, government bodies or large institutions. Commissioning should also be encouraged in the popular realm. We may not realise it but we have a say in the great force that is Western Art.

I want to show in this event that one person can make a huge creative difference without actually being creative themselves (I'm a one girl covers band). I love the idea of buying a piece of something not yet conceived. It appeals to my aristocratic tendencies. If you liked the music/instrument/outfit/painting/drawing/photo you experienced that day then meet the maker, order one for yourself, custom made, to suit your own fussy taste and then show it off.

That's what I do!

I mean, why not?
